POETRY.

From the Troy Daily Times. Love in a Mansion.

They may talk of love in a mansion, With cellars of good old wine-Of marble halls and villas, Where gold and jewels shine; They may talk of a sly fligtation, By the light of a chandelier-Of a rich and gooty papa, With an only daughter dear:

Your mansions are much too lofty, They are large, and dreary, and cold; Capid delights in a cottage, In warm, true hearts-not gold. Your seats on a silken sofa. By the side of a lovely one, May do well enough to talk of-But sitting on hoops ain't fun.

Your rich and high-born ladies Will spend a fortune each year, And risk their husband's last dollar For a bonnet-"a perfect dear." They may play the pinno divinely, And with brainless coxcombs smirk, They may paint and caress a poodle-But they can't do a stitch of work.

Oh, give me love in a cottage, Arranged with womanly taste, With one who ain't nearly fainting With corset and whalehone waist, Though she may not ape the graces, Or a borrowed complexion wear, She can grace my humble cottage, And warble away dull care.

Farmers' Daughters.

rather have for wives women well and persons. properly educated at home. And this education can be had, wherever the desire is not wanting. A taste for reading does wonders, and an earnest thirst after knowledge is almost certain to attain a sweet draught of the "Pierian spring." There is a farmer's daughter in this very room in which I am writing, a beautiful, refined, and intellectual woman, in whose girlhood books were not as plentiful as now, and who gained her fine education under difficulties which would have discouraged any but one who had as true a love for study.

The women in towns and cities are becoming so universally unhealthy, and so almost universally extravagant, foolish and fashionable, that men are almost in despair of obtaining wives who are not invalids, and providing them with what they demand after they have married them. I would not speak as though our farmers' daughters were deficient in education. Many brilliant scholars and talented women may be found among themin New England this is especially sobut I would seek to awaken the ambition of all to become that admired and favored class which they ought to be, if they will but unite refined culture with their most excellent graces.

A sweet country home, with roses and honey-suckles trained to climb over it; with good taste, intelligence, and beauty within; toil enough to ensure health, and leisure enough to court acquaintance with books and flowers, and the leveliness of nature, with peace, plenty, and love, is surely one of the paradises which Heaven has left for the attainment of man .- Ohio Cultivator.
